

REMARKS

This paper is submitted to correct an inadvertent typographical error in the amendment filed May 29, 2007. No official action has been issued following that amendment.

The Remarks filed with the May 29, 2007, amendment stated that new independent claim 72 (and dependent claims) included the feature of providing substantially continuous or continuous negative pressure at the outlet to achieve displacement of the fluid through the passageway from the inlet to the outlet. However, claim 72 as presented recited “regularly” rather than “substantially continuously” through an inadvertent typographical error. The corrected set of claims submitted herewith corrects this error, and claim 72 now recites “substantially continuously” in place of “regularly.”

Early and favorable action is requested.

Respectfully submitted,

MARSHALL, GERSTEIN & BORUN LLP
